Comparing Notes: A Memoir by Adam Ockelford

In his lyrical and moving memoir, Comparing Notes, Adam Ockelford takes us on a journey into the heart of music and friendship. As a music student at Cambridge University, Ockelford found himself surrounded by a group of talented and passionate musicians. Together, they embarked on a musical odyssey that would change their lives forever.

Through vivid prose and insightful reflections, Ockelford recounts the highs and lows of his musical education. He writes about the exhilaration of performing with his friends, the challenges of mastering complex compositions, and the camaraderie that bound them together. But Comparing Notes is more than just a story about music. It is also a story about the transformative power of friendship.

Ockelford's friends helped him to find his voice as a musician and as a person. They taught him the importance of perseverance, the value of collaboration, and the power of laughter. In their company, he discovered a sense of belonging and purpose that would sustain him throughout his life.

Comparing Notes is a beautifully written and deeply moving memoir that will resonate with anyone who has ever experienced the transformative power of music and friendship. It is a reminder that the bonds we forge with others can make all the difference in our lives.
