CANDLES

The days of our future stand before us like a row of little lighted candles—golden, warm, and lively little candles.

The days gone by remain behind us,
a mournful line of burnt-out candles;
the nearest ones are still smoking,
cold candles, melted and bent.

I do not want to look at them; their form saddens me,
and it saddens me to recall their first light.
I look ahead at my lighted candles.

I do not want to turn back, lest I see and shudder—
how quickly the somber line lengthens, how quickly the burnt-out candles multiply.

"Words, like seeds, planted in the garden of our minds."
