In their new book, Post Pandemic Great Reset: With Big Tech and China On Board, authors [Author's name] argue that the pandemic has created an opportunity to reset the global economy and political system. They argue that this reset could be used to create a more just and equitable world.

The book begins by examining the impact of the pandemic on the global economy. The authors argue that the pandemic has caused a deep recession that is likely to lead to a prolonged period of economic stagnation. They also argue that the pandemic has exacerbated existing inequalities, with the poor and marginalized being hit hardest.

The book then turns to the impact of the pandemic on the political system. The authors argue that the pandemic has led to a rise in authoritarianism and nationalism. They also argue that the pandemic has exposed the weaknesses of the global Free Trade Agreement, which is based on the principles of free trade and globalization.

In the final part of the book, the authors propose a series of reforms that they believe are necessary to create a more just and equitable world.

These reforms include:

- A global wealth tax
- A global minimum wage
- A global carbon tax
- A global ban on nuclear weapons
- A global fund to address climate change

The authors argue that these reforms are necessary to address the root causes of the problems that the world faces. They believe that the pandemic has created an opportunity to reset the global economy and political system, and that this reset could be used to create a more just and equitable world.
